

Table of Contents

	PREFACE	15
Ch. 1	Introduction	17
	1.1 The Problem With the Meaning of Jurisprudence	17
	1.2 A Format for the General Theory of Law	19
	1.3 A Model for the Study of the General Theory of Islamic Law or Uṣūl al-Fiqh	25
	1.4 The Subject-matter of Uṣūl al-Fiqh	29
	1.5 The Scope of This Book	31
Ch. 2	Uṣūl al-Fiqh as Sources of Islamic Law and Uṣūl al-Fiqh as a Discipline	35
	2.1 Distinguishing Between Uṣūl al-Fiqh as Sources of Islamic Law and Uṣūl al-Fiqh as an Independent Discipline is Crucial to the Understanding of Islamic Jurisprudence	35
	2.2 Describing Uṣūl al-Fiqh as Sources of Islamic Law	36
	2.2.1 The Literal Meaning of Fiqh	37
	2.2.2 Earlier General Meaning of Fiqh	38
	2.2.3 Later Definition of Fiqh	39
	2.2.4 Analysis of the Definition of Fiqh	40
	2.2.5 Distinctions Based on the Definition	43
	2.2.5.1 Distinction between sharīʿah and fiqh	43

2.2.5.2	Distinction between mujtahid and faqīh	43
2.2.5.3	Distinction between ijtihād and taqlīd	44
2.2.5.4	Distinction between a muqallid and a faqīh	44
2.2.6	A Wider Definition of Fiqh : Criticising the Narrow Definition	45
2.2.6.1	What in reality is the dalīl tafṣīlī ?	45
2.2.6.2	The legal structure of the evidences (adillah)	47
2.2.6.3	Identifying the defects of the narrow definition	49
2.2.6.4	Redefining fiqh	50
2.2.7	Rejection of the Narrow Definition of Fiqh and its Impact	51
2.2.7.1	The Meaning of Aṣl	52
2.2.7.2	The Final Meaning of Uṣūl al-Fiqh as sources of law	54
2.3	Describing the Meaning of Uṣūl al-Fiqh as a Discipline	55
2.3.1	' Ilm Uṣūl al-Fiqh (the Discipline of Uṣūl al-Fiqh) Defined	55
2.3.2	Examples of the Qawā'id Uṣūliyyah	56
2.3.3	The Subject-matter of ' Ilm Uṣūl al-Fiqh	57
I	THE ḤUKM SHAR'Ī	59
Ch. 3	The Ḥukm: What is Islamic Law?	61
3.1	The Three Elements of the Ḥukm Shar'ī	61
3.2	The Meaning of the Ḥukm Shar'ī or the Meaning of Islamic Law	62
3.3	The Ḥukm Taklīfī —Obligations and Duties	66
3.3.1	The ḥukm taklīfī from the perspective of the uṣūlī	67
3.3.2	The ḥukm taklīfī from the perspective of the faqīh	67
3.3.3	The ḥukm taklīfī according to the Ḥanafīs	68
3.4	The Ḥukm Waḍ'ī —Declaratory Rules	70
3.5	The Distinction Between the Ḥukm Taklīfī and the Ḥukm Waḍ'ī	71

Ch. 4	Classification of Rules in Islamic Law	73
4.1	The Meaning of Wājib (Obligatory Act) and its Different Types	73
4.1.1	The ḥukm or rule for the wājib	74
4.2	The Classifications of the Wājib (Obligatory Act)	75
4.2.1	Classification based on the time available for performance: muṭlaq and muqayyad . . .	76
4.2.1.1	Wājib muṭlaq (obligatory act independent of time)	76
4.2.1.2	Wājib muqayyad also called wājib muwaaqqat (obligatory act limited by time)	76
4.2.2	Classification based on the extent of the required act	78
4.2.2.1	Wājib muḥaddad (determinate obligatory act)	79
4.2.2.2	Wājib ghayr muḥaddad (indeterminate obligatory act) . . .	79
4.2.3	Classification based on the subjects who are required to perform	79
4.2.3.1	Wājib ‘aynī (the universal obligatory act)	80
4.2.3.2	Wājib kifā’ī (the communal obligatory act)	80
4.2.4	Classification based on the identification of the object of the required act	80
4.2.4.1	Wājib mu’ayyan (the specified obligatory act)	80
4.2.4.2	Wājib mukhayyar (the unspecified obligatory act or obligatory act with an option as to its performance) . .	80
4.3	The Meaning of Mandūb (Recommended Act) and its Different Types	81
4.3.1	Types of Mandūb	82
4.3.1.1	Sunnah mu’akkadah (the emphatic recommended act)	82
4.3.1.2	Sunnah ghayr mu’akkadah (non-emphatic recommended act)— nafl , mustahabb	83
4.3.1.3	Sunnat zawā’id	83

4.4	The Meaning of Ḥarām (Prohibited Act) and its Different Types	83
4.4.1	The types of ḥarām	85
4.4.1.1	Ḥarām li-dhātihi (prohibited for itself)	85
4.4.1.2	Ḥarām li-ghayrihi (prohibited for an external factor)	86
4.4.1.3	Distinction between the two types .	86
4.5	The Meaning of Makrūh (Disapproved Act) and its Different Types	87
4.6	The Meaning of Mubāḥ (Permitted Act) and its Different Types	88
4.7	The Ḥukm Waḍ'ī or the Declaratory Rule	89
4.7.1	Sabab, sharṭ and māni'	89
4.7.1.1	Sabab (Cause).	90
4.7.1.2	Sharṭ (Condition).	91
4.7.1.3	Māni' (Obstacle).	92
4.7.2	Ṣiḥḥah, fasād and buṭlān (validity, vitiation and nullity)	92
4.7.3	'Azīmah and rukḥṣah (initial rules and exemptions)	93
4.8	The Purpose of the Classification	93
Ch. 5	The Lawgiver (Ḥākim)	95
5.1	Allah is the True Source of all Laws	95
5.2	The Fundamental Norm of the Legal System . .	96
5.3	The Law and the Interest of Man	97
5.3.1	Is Man the sole purpose of creation?	98
5.3.2	Can we employ maṣlahah (interest) for new laws?	99
5.4	Are the Sharī'ah and Natural Law Compatible?	100
Ch. 6	The Act (Maḥkūm Fīh)	105
6.1	Defining the Maḥkūm Fīh	105
6.2	The Conditions for the Creation of Obligation (Taklīf)	106
6.2.1	The act to be performed or avoided must be known	106
6.2.2	The subject should be able to perform the act	107
6.3	The Nature of the Act (Maḥkūm Fīh)	108
6.4	Classification of the Ḥukm Taklīfī on the Basis of Rights	109

6.5	Classification of Duties: Original and Substitutory	113
6.6	The Importance of the Classification of Rights for Islamic Criminal Law	114
6.7	Human Rights and Other Classifications	118
6.7.1	Developing the Islamic Theory of Rights and Duties	118
6.7.2	The analysis of rights	121
6.7.3	The nature of duties in Islamic law	122
6.7.4	Natural rights and rights given by the law	122
Ch. 7	The Subject (Maḥkūm 'Alayh)	125
7.1	Ahliyyah or Legal Capacity	126
7.1.1	The two parts of legal capacity	126
7.1.2	Dhimmah and legal capacity	126
7.2	The Underlying Bases of Legal Capacity	127
7.2.1	Insāniyyah and ' Aql '	127
7.2.2	Mental maturity	128
7.2.3	Legal capacity and liability	128
7.3	Complete Capacity	129
7.3.1	Legal effects of complete capacity	129
7.3.2	The stages leading to complete legal capacity	130
7.4	Deficient and Imperfect Capacity	131
7.4.1	Cases of deficient legal capacity	131
7.4.1.1	The unborn child (janīn)	131
7.4.1.2	Capacity of a dead person	132
7.4.1.3	Capacity of a fictitious person.	132
7.4.1.4	Capacity of the minor (ṣabī)	134
7.4.2	Cases of Imperfect Capacity	136
7.4.2.1	Legal Capacity of a Woman	136
7.4.2.2	Slaves	139
Ch. 8	Causes of Defective Legal Capacity	141
8.1	Natural Causes of Defective Capacity	142
8.1.1	Minority (ṣighar)	142
8.1.2	Insanity (junūn)	143
8.1.3	Idiocy ('atah)	144
8.1.4	Sleep and fits of fainting (nawm, ighmā')	144
8.1.5	Forgetfulness (nisyān)	144
8.1.6	Death-illness (marad al-mawt)	145
8.2	Acquired Causes of Defective Capacity	147

8.2.1	Intoxication (sukr)	148
8.2.2	Jest (hazl)	149
8.2.3	Indiscretion (safah)	150
8.2.4	Coercion and duress (ikrāh)	151
8.2.5	Mistake and ignorance (khata', shubhah, and jahl)	154
II	THE PRIMARY SOURCES OF ISLAMIC LAW	157
Ch. 9	The Meaning of Primary and Secondary Sources	159
9.1	The Meaning of "Source" in Islamic Law	160
9.2	The Classification of the Sources	160
9.2.1	Agreed upon and disputed sources	161
9.2.2	Transmitted and rational sources	161
9.2.3	Definitive and probable sources	162
9.2.4	Primary and secondary sources	165
9.3	Grades of the Sources	166
Ch. 10	The Qur'ān	171
10.1	The Qur'ān as the Primary Source of Law	172
10.1.1	Justification of the Qur'ān as a source	174
10.1.2	The recording and revelation of the Qur'ān	174
10.2	Legal strength and indication of aḥkām in the Qur'ān	176
10.3	The kinds of aḥkām in the Qur'ān	177
10.4	Can one text of the Qur'ān abrogate another?	178
Ch. 11	The Sunnah	179
11.1	The Sunnah as a Primary Source	179
11.1.1	Definition of the Sunnah	179
11.1.1.1	Literal meaning	179
11.1.1.2	Technical meanings	180
11.1.2	Kinds of Sunnah	180
11.1.2.1	Kinds of the Sunnah with respect to the channels of the aḥkām	181
11.1.2.2	Kinds of Sunnah with respect to its modes of transmission	185
11.1.2.3	Ḥadīth Muttaṣil	186
11.1.3	Justification of the Sunnah as a source of law	188
11.1.4	Justification of the different types of Sunnah	190

11.1.4.1	Conditions for acting upon the muttaṣil ḥadīth	190
11.1.4.2	Ḥadīth that is not muttaṣil	192
11.2	Status of the Sunnah With Respect to the Qur'ān	193
11.2.1	The manner in which the Sunnah lays down the aḥkām	193
11.2.2	Modern views about the relationship between the Qur'ān and the Sunnah	196
Ch. 12	Consensus of Legal Opinion (Ijmā')	201
12.1	The Meaning of Ijmā'	201
12.1.1	Technical or legal meaning	201
12.1.2	Conditions for the validity of ijmā'	202
12.1.3	Types of ijmā'	204
12.1.3.1	Explicit ijmā' or ijmā' qawli	204
12.1.3.2	Tacit ijmā' or ijmā' sukūti	205
12.1.4	The legal force of ijmā' as a source	205
12.1.4.1	The binding strength of explicit ijmā'	206
12.1.4.2	The binding strength of tacit ijmā'	208
12.1.5	The sanad of ijmā'	209
12.1.6	Likelihood of the occurrence of ijmā'	210
12.1.7	Cases of ijmā' transmitted in books of fiqh	211
12.1.8	Role of ijmā' in the modern world	211
III	THE SECONDARY SOURCES OF ISLAMIC LAW	215
Ch. 13	Maṣlaḥah and the Maqāṣid al-Sharī'ah	217
13.1	The Meaning of Maṣlaḥah (Interest) and the Doctrine of Utility	218
13.1.1	The Meaning of Utility and Bentham	218
13.1.2	Maṣlaḥah in Islamic Law	219
13.2	The Classification of Maṣlaḥah	220
13.2.1	First classification: maṣlaḥah acknowledged or rejected by the sharī'ah	220
13.2.2	Second classification: maṣlaḥah according to its inner strength	222
13.2.3	Third classification: definitive and probable interests	223

13.2.4	Fourth classification: public and private interests	224
13.3	The Doctrine of Maṣlaḥah and Maslaḥah Mursalah : Distinction	224
13.4	Maqāṣid al-Sharī'ah or the Purposes of Islamic Law	224
13.4.1	What is beyond the purposes?	225
13.4.2	Maqāṣid al-sharī'ah and the texts	226
13.5	The Nature and Structure of the Purposes of the Sharī'ah	227
13.5.1	Primary purposes in the service of the Hereafter	227
13.5.2	The two faces of the maqāṣid	229
13.5.3	Primary and secondary purposes	230
13.5.4	Priorities within the maqāṣid	232
13.5.4.1	Rule 1: The stronger interest shall prevail	233
13.5.4.2	Rule 2: The public interest is prior to the private	233
13.5.4.3	Rule 3: The definitive interest prevails over the probable	234
13.5.5	Maṣlaḥah , Public Interest and Human Rights	235
Ch. 14	Qiyās (Analogy)	237
14.1	Definition of Qiyās	237
14.2	Elements of Qiyās	238
14.3	Examples of Qiyās	239
14.4	Conditions Pertaining to the Elements	241
14.4.1	Conditions of the aṣl or the case in the texts	241
14.4.2	Conditions pertaining to the ḥukm of the aṣl	241
14.4.3	Conditions pertaining to the far' or new case needing a ḥukm	243
14.4.4	Conditions pertaining to the ' illah and meaning of ' illah	244
14.4.4.1	The meaning of ' illah (the underlying cause)	244
14.4.4.2	Conditions for the validity of the ' illah	245
14.5	Types of Analogy (Qiyās)	248
14.5.1	The first type: probable and definitive or qaṭ'ī and ẓannī	248

14.5.2	The second type: classification according to the strength of the ḥukm established in the far'	249
14.5.3	Qiyās jalī and qiyās khafī or manifest and concealed analogy	250
14.6	Justification of qiyās as a source of Islamic law	251
14.6.1	Arguments of those who uphold qiyās	251
14.6.2	Arguments of those who reject qiyās	253
Ch. 15	Istiḥsān (Juristic Preference)	255
15.1	The Meaning of Istiḥsān	255
15.1.1	Istiḥsān is a method for looking at the consequences of a decision	256
15.2	Examples of istiḥsān	257
15.3	Types of Istiḥsān	258
15.3.1	Distinction between the various types	260
15.4	Justification of Istiḥsān	260
Ch. 16	Istiṣḥāb (Presumption of Continuity)	263
16.1	The Meaning of Istiṣḥāb	263
16.2	The Principles That Form the Basis of Istiṣḥāb	263
16.2.1	Types of Istiṣḥāb and Their Legal Validity	265
16.3	Istiṣḥāb al-Ḥāl Cannot Establish a New Rule	266
16.4	Istiṣḥāb al-Ḥāl and the Islamisation of Laws	266
Ch. 17	Maṣlaḥah Mursalah (Extended Analogy)	269
17.1	The Meaning of Maṣlaḥah Mursalah	269
17.2	The Conditions for the Validity of Maṣlaḥah Mursalah	270
17.3	Illustrations of Maṣlaḥah Mursalah	271
17.4	The Process of Using Maṣlaḥah Mursalah	272
17.5	Identifying Maṣlaḥah That is Gharīb	274
17.6	Identifying Maṣlaḥah That is Rejected (Mulghā)	276
17.7	Justification of Maṣlaḥah Mursalah	277
Ch. 18	Sadd al-Dharī'ah (Blocking the Lawful Means to an Unlawful End)	279
18.1	Types of Lawful Acts	280
18.2	Disagreement of Jurists About the Legality of the Principle	280
Ch. 19	Other Secondary Sources	283

19.1	Companion's Opinion (Qawl al-Ṣaḥābī)	283
19.1.1	Views of those who accept it as a source	284
19.1.2	Views of those who do not consider it binding	285
19.1.3	Opinions of the Followers of the Companions (Tābi'ūn)	285
19.2	Shar' Man Qablanā (Earlier Scriptures)	285
19.2.1	Types of earlier laws	285
19.2.2	Reason why the earlier laws are not binding	286
19.3	Custom ('Urf)	286
19.3.1	Types of 'urf	287
19.3.1.1	Division into usage and practice	287
19.3.2	Can the Western laws obtaining in Pakistan be treated as custom?	288
IV	IJTIHĀD (INTERPRETATION)	291
Ch. 20	The Meaning of Ijtihād and its Modes	293
20.1	The Meaning of Ijtihād	293
20.2	Ijtihād is not Independent of the Qur'ān and the Sunnah	294
20.3	The Task of the Mujtahid	294
20.4	Basic Assumptions Made by the Mujtahid	295
20.5	Texts That are not Subject to Ijtihād	296
20.6	The Three Modes of Ijtihād	298
20.6.1	The first mode	298
20.6.2	The second mode	298
20.6.3	The third mode	299
20.7	The Complete Process of Ijtihād	299
20.8	The Hukm of Ijtihād and its Types	300
20.9	The Qualifications of the Mujtahid	300
20.9.1	Who is a mujtahid today?	302
20.10	Ijtihād a Legislative Function: The Need for an Islamic Theory of Legislation	303
Ch. 21	The First Mode of Ijtihād: Interpreting the Texts	307
21.1	The Concept of Bayān (Elaboration)	307
21.1.1	Bayān taqrīr (complementary expression or elaboration)	309
21.1.2	Bayān tafsīr (enabling expression)	310
21.1.3	Bayān taghyīr (elaboration by exception)	310

21.1.4	Bayān tabdīl (conditional expression)	311
21.1.5	Bayān ḍarūrah (elaboration by necessity)	311
21.2	Literal Interpretation of the Texts	312
21.2.1	The structure of interpretation	313
21.2.2	The four general literal methods of establishing the aḥkām (dalālat)	314
21.2.2.1	‘Ibārat al-naṣṣ —the plain meaning rule	314
21.2.2.2	Ishārat al-naṣṣ —the connotation of the text	316
21.2.2.3	Dalālat al-naṣṣ —the implication of the text	317
21.2.2.4	Iqtiḍā’ al-naṣṣ —requirement of the text by necessity	318
21.2.2.5	The strength of the aḥkām proved by the four methods and conflict between them	320
21.2.2.6	Literal methods of proving the ḥukm considered fāsid (irregular) by the Ḥanafīs, but practised by the others	321
21.2.3	The literal methods of establishing the aḥkām practised by the Shāfi’īs	321
21.2.3.1	Dalālat al-ṣiḡḡah or proving the ḥukm through the syntax	322
21.2.3.2	Dalālat al-laḥẓ bi-ghayr al-ṣiḡḡah or proving the ḥukm through means other than the plain meaning	322
21.2.4	Amr (command) and nahy (proscription): the nature and type of ḥukm established	325
21.2.4.1	The command (amr) and its rules	325
21.2.4.2	The proscription (nahy) and its rules	326
21.2.5	The number or categories affected by the ḥukm : ‘āmm ; khāṣṣ ; mushtarak ; and mu’awwal	327
21.2.5.1	The specific word (khāṣṣ), its types and rules	327
21.2.5.2	The equivocal word (mushtarak)	328
21.2.5.3	The general word (‘āmm)	329
21.2.6	The clarity or ambiguity with which the ḥukm is established	330
21.2.7	The effect of the use of words in the actual or metaphorical meanings	331

Ch. 22	The Second Mode of Ijtihād: Reasoning by Analogy	335
22.1	Moving From the First Mode of Ijtihād to the Second	335
22.2	The Methods of Discovering the Underlying Cause (Masālik al-'Illah)	337
22.2.1	Discovering the cause in the new case: tahqīq al-manāt	339
22.3	Analogy and the Modern Jurist	340
Ch. 23	The Third Mode of Ijtihād: Employing the Maqāṣid al-Sharī'ah	343
23.1	Moving From the Second Mode of Ijtihād to the Third: the ' Illah and the Hikmah	344
23.2	The Interplay Between General Principles and the Maqāṣid al-Sharī'ah	346
23.3	A Value Oriented Jurisprudence	347
23.3.1	Distinction between the value system in Islamic law and Western jurisprudence	348
23.4	Maṣlahah and the Modern Jurist	349
Ch. 24	Abrogation (Naskh) and Preference (Tarjīh)	351
24.1	The Doctrine of Abrogation (Naskh)	352
24.1.1	Examples of repealing and overriding laws	352
24.1.2	The wisdom behind the doctrine of abrogation	353
24.1.3	Distinction between naskh (abrogation) and takhsīṣ (restriction)	353
24.1.4	Types of abrogation	354
24.1.5	The attributes of the abrogating and abrogated evidences	354
24.2	Justification for the Doctrine of Abrogation	355
24.2.1	Comparing the Impact of Abrogation and Restriction	355
24.3	The Rules of Preference (Tarjīh)	356
24.3.1	Reconciliation (jam')	357

V	MADHĀHIB, TAQLĪD AND FATWĀS	359
Ch. 25	The Meaning of “School of Law” and Following a Madhhab	361
25.1	The Views of Modern Scholars on Why a Particular School Should be Followed	361
25.2	The Uṣūlī Argument for Following a Single School	367
25.2.1	The Nature of the Qawā'id Uṣūliyyah : the Basis of the Schools of Law	367
25.2.2	Additional Qawā'id Uṣūliyyah as the Basis of the Different Systems	369
25.2.3	A School of Law Then is a Unique Body of Rules of Interpretation	370
25.2.4	The Analogy of Portability and Moving Between Schools	372
Ch. 26	Taqlīd and its Implementation Within the School	375
26.1	Understanding the Meaning and Implications of Taqlīd	376
26.1.1	The Literal Meaning of Taqlīd	377
26.1.2	The Technical Meanings of Taqlīd	377
26.1.3	Taqlīd in the Pakistani Legal System	379
26.2	The Primary Function of a School of Law	380
26.3	The Resources of the School: Jurists, Issues and Texts	381
26.3.1	The Hierarchy of Jurists Within a School	381
26.3.2	The Hierarchy of Issues Within a School	384
26.3.3	The Hierarchy of Texts Within a School	386
26.4	The Integral Bond Between the Four Sunni Schools	392
Ch. 27	The Role of the Modern Muslim Jurist	399
27.1	Is There a Possibility of Independent Ijtihād Today?	399
27.1.1	Independent ijtihād is Theoretically Possible Today, but the Reality is Different	399
27.1.2	The Highest Stature That a Modern Jurist Can Possibly Attain Today	401
27.1.3	Inter-school Disputes	403
27.2	Issuing Fatwās and Judgments	405

27.2.1	The Need for Recording Reasoning With the Fatwā	405
27.2.2	Sample Fatwā	408
27.2.2.1	Question	408
27.2.2.2	Response	409
21	Select Bibliography	419
21	Detailed Bibliography	423
22	Glossary	445
Index		449