

CORPORATIONS IN ISLAM

Imran Ahsan Khan Nyazee

Advanced Legal Studies Institute

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	The Purpose of the Study	1
1.2	Why Islamize the Modern Corporation?	2
1.3	How is the Islamic Model of the Corporation to be Discovered?	10
1.4	Structure of the Study	16
I	Principles Governing Business Organization in Islam	19
2	Traditional Forms of Business Organization	27
2.1	Contracts Supporting Sharikah	31
2.1.1	The Contract of Amānah (Trust)	32
2.1.2	The Contract of Wakālah (Agency)	32
2.1.3	The Contract of Kafālah (Surety)	36
2.1.4	The Contract of Ijārah (Hire)	37
2.2	The Underlying Contracts and the Types of Partnership	38
2.2.1	Classification According to the Ḥanafī School	38
2.2.2	Classification According to the Shāfi‘ī School	42
2.2.3	Classification According to the Mālikī School	43

2.2.4	Classification According to the Ḥanbalī School	44
2.2.5	Conclusion Drawn From the Classification	45
2.2.6	Comparing the Classification with Law	46
2.3	The Concept of Mushāʿ and Sharikat al-Milk	48
2.3.1	The Meaning of Co-ownership (Sharikat al-Milk)	49
2.3.2	The Conditions of Co-ownership	50
2.4	Distinction Between Sharikat al-Milk and Sharikat al-ʿAqd	52
3	Entitlement to Profit and the Principle of Liability	55
3.1	Types of Liability for Profit	56
3.2	Ḍamān al-Māl and Profit	57
3.3	Ḍamān al-ʿAmal and Profit	60
3.4	Ḍamān al-Thaman and Profit	65
3.5	Bases for Entitlement to Profit in Modern Law	67
4	The Concept of Credit and Liability in Islamic Law	69
4.1	The Concept of Credit in Fiqh	70
4.2	Liability of Partners in Islamic Law	73
4.2.1	Liability of Partners and Requirements of Muṭālabah in Sharikat al-ʿInān and Muḍārabah?	74
4.2.2	Liability of Partners in the Ḥanafī Mufāwāḍah	80
4.2.3	Liability of Partners in the ʿInān Partnership Based on Kafālah	81
II Corporate Personality and Traditional Islamic Law		83
5	The Concept of the Firm and the Corporation	89
5.1	The Accounting Notion of the Firm	90
5.2	The Lawyer’s Notion of the Firm	91

5.3	The Mercantile Notion of the Firm and Islamic Law	92
5.4	The Mercantile Notion of the Firm, Corporate Personality, and Misleading Views	93
6	Views for and Against Corporate Personality	97
6.1	Brief Historical Background of the Corporation	98
6.2	The Approach in Modern Works From the Islamic Perspective	100
6.3	Views on the Legality of the Fictitious Person and the Business Corporation	102
6.3.1	Corporate Personality is not Acknowledged by Islamic Law	103
6.3.2	Views of Those Who Confirm the Concept for Islamic Law	104
6.3.3	Views of Scholars Who Called for Ijtihād on the Issue.	105
7	Corporate Personality and Uṣūl al-Fiqh	109
7.1	Legal Personality in the Past	111
7.2	The Meaning of Person and Personality in Fiqh and Law	112
7.2.1	Terms Used in Fiqh	115
7.2.2	Comparing Dhimmah and “Personality”	117
7.2.3	Legal Personality for a Non-human	119
7.3	A New Principle	121
8	Corporate Personality and Fiqh	123
8.1	Denial of Personality to the Waqf	126
8.2	The Bayt al-Māl has no Legal Personality	131
8.3	The Estate of the Deceased (Tarikah) has no Personality (Dhimmah)	132
8.4	Other Minor Examples From Fiqh	134
8.5	Some Recent Arguments Supporting Waqf and Bayt al-Māl as Legal Persons	135
8.6	Creating an Islamic Fictitious Legal Person	137

III	Islamizing the Modern Corporation	141
9	The Meaning of Corporation and Islamic Law	147
9.1	Comparison Between a Partnership and a Corporation From the Islamic Perspective	149
9.2	Is the Corporation a Contract?	154
9.3	Nizām Qānūnī, Nizām Mālī or Sharikah	156
9.4	The Presumed Contract, Arab Scholars, and the Islamic Fiqh Academy	159
9.4.1	General Objections	161
9.4.2	Specific Objections	162
9.5	Questions for the Islamic Fiqh Academy (OIC)	168
9.6	The Real Underlying Contract	170
9.6.1	The Ījāb (Offer) of the Rabb al-Māl to the Mudārib in a Normal Mudārabah	171
9.6.2	The Ījāb (Offer) of the Subscriber to the Ordinary Shares of the Corporation	172
10	The Modern Corporation and the Rules of Ribā	177
10.1	The Meaning of Ribā and the Contract of Ṣarf	178
10.1.1	Basic Assumptions for the Principle	179
10.1.2	The Four Rules of Ribā	182
10.1.3	The Definition of Ribā	186
10.1.4	Illustrations	188
10.2	The Principle of Ribā and the Ordinary Share	192
11	Defects of the Existing Corporate Structure	197
11.1	Recalling the Earlier Analysis	200
11.1.1	The Basic Principles of Islamic Commercial Law	200
11.2	Examining Possible Contractual Relationships Within the Corporation	202
11.2.1	The Contract Between the Promoters of the Corporation	203
11.2.2	The Contract Between the Subscriber and the Corporation	204

11.2.3	The General Features of the Contract Between a Subscriber and the Corpora- tion	205
11.2.4	Comparison Between the Mudārabah Contract and the Contract of the Share- holder with the Corporation	207
11.3	Limited Liability and Islamic Law	213
11.3.1	The Meaning of Limited Liability in Law and in Fiqh	214
11.3.2	Liability of Partners for Lawful Acts of the Partners	217
11.3.3	Liability of Partners for Unauthorized Acts of the Managing Partner	218
11.3.4	The Case of the Disobedient Slave	219
11.4	Identifying the Defects of the Modern Corpora- tion	222
12	The Islamic Corporation: A New Model	225
12.1	The Aims of the New Model of the Islamic Cor- poration	227
12.2	Basic Assumptions for the Islamic Corporation	228
12.3	The Relationship of the Shareholder and the Corporation	232
12.3.1	Existing Structure	232
12.3.2	The New Islamic Model	233
12.3.3	Ordinary Shares and Preference Shares	234
12.4	The Creation of Limited Liability	235
12.5	Creation of Unlimited Liability	236
12.6	General Advantages of the New Model	237
13	Select Bibliography	238
14	Glossary	243